Report of the Registrar

Although continuing education is not a requirement to hold a California contractor's license, it continues to be the subject of debate among contractors and Board members. Contractor education was elevated in importance two years ago when the Board created the Contractor and Consumer Education Committee and when it set a strategic goal to increase contractor education and training.

For the majority of you who don't need a mandate to keep up to date on trade practices and contractor law, see the article below about a series of upcoming contractor seminars. Make your reservation for a CSLB-sponsored contractor education seminar. Set in seven locations throughout the state, from Redding to San Diego, each three-hour seminar will offer

New Board Member Pablo Wong

Pablo Wong was appointed to the Contractors State License Board as a public member on July 29, 1998, by Governor Pete Wilson. He serves on the Contractor and Consumer Education and the Licensing Committees for the 1998-99 term.

Pablo Wong
CSLB Public Member

Mr. Wong brings a diverse perspective to the Board. His personal background is as varied as his business and government experience. Born to a Chinese father and a Nicaraguan mother, Mr. Wong was raised and attended school in Nicaragua. His first language is Spanish. He earned a B.S. degree in agricultural economics from the University of Hawaii. While there, he got a taste for public service when he was elected to the student government senate and worked in the school's renowned Center for East/West Studies.

Currently, Mr. Wong is the community affairs manager for the AAA-California State Automobile Association. Previously, he served as the Governor's Industry/Consumer Liaison for the California Department of Real Estate from 1991-95, then as deputy director of the Governor's Office of Community Relations until 1997.

"I was skeptical about what I could contribute when the Governor offered me the opportunity to serve as a real estate liaison, but I wanted to give something back to the state," he said.

His goals as a public servant then were: (1) to make the word "bureaucrat" synonymous with

Free, Fast & Fascinating! Contractor Education Seminars

Free, fast and fascinating: three words you don't normally associate with government; however, in the case of the CSLB-sponsored contractor education seminars, you'll get just that.

CSLB is holding on educational seminars for licensed contractors in seven locations throughout the state from November through February. The free part is that there is no charge for you to attend. The fast part is that they are three information-packed hours in the evening. The fascinating part is that you choose from topics that are timely and relevant to you right now. Tell me more, you say?

Here's what you do. Choose the location nearest you, then decide if you want Track I or Track II. Attendance is limited, and you must register on a first come, first served basis. Fax to us the registration form on the back page of this newsletter, and you will receive a confirmation with details.

The Contractors State License Board shall protect consumers by regulating the construction industry through policies that promote the health, safety, and general welfare of the public in matters relating to construction. The Contractors State License Board will accomplish this by:

- Ensuring that construction is performed in a safe, competent, and professional manner through licensing of contractors and enforcement of the licensing laws.
- Providing resolution to disputes that arise from construction activities.
- Educating consumers so that they may make informed choices.

Board Briefs

Chair and Vice Chair Elected

Marilyn Dailey, a Board member since 1994, was elected as Chair of the CSLB for the 1998-99 term at the July Board meeting. Joseph Tavaglione was elected as Vice Chair. Ms. Dailey is a public member and has served on every Board committee. Her career spans 30 years, including work in television broadcasting, public relations and business administration. She was re-appointed to a second four-year term to the Board in July by the Governor.

Mr. Tavaglione, who was appointed to the Board in 1997 as a contractor member, is a Riverside General Building contractor. He has served on the Contractor and Consumer Education Committee, Licensing and in 1998-99, the Legislation and Executive Committees.

One of the first orders of business for the Chair and Vice Chair was to determine committee assignments for 1998-99.

1998-99 Committees

The committee assignments for 1998-99 are:

Contractor and Consumer Education Committee: Sharon Kowitz, Chair; Don Schultze, Vice Chair; Minnie Lopez-Baffo; Jake Shirvanian; and Pablo Wong

Enforcement Committee: Nina Tate, Chair; John Chalker, Vice Chair; Sharon Kowitz; Don Schultze; and Jake Shirvanian

Executive Committee: Douglas Barnhart, Chair; Marilyn Dailey, Vice Chair; Mrs. Phil Moore; Bob Alvarado; Nina Tate; Sharon Kowitz; and Joe Tavaglione

Legislation Committee: Mrs. Phil Moore, Chair; Minnie Lopez-Baffo, Vice Chair; Bob Alvarado; David Lucchetti; and Joe Tavaglione

Licensing Committee: Bob Alvarado, Chair; David Lucchetti, Vice Chair; John Chalker; Nina Tate; and Pablo Wong

"The assignments reflect a balance between industry and public members on each committee," said Ms. Dailey.

License Classification Complete

At the July Board meeting, a letter sent to Governor Wilson signed by the full Board was presented. The letter states that the CSLB has "successfully reviewed and revised our licensing classification structure to ensure protection of consumers while not limiting work options of general and specialty contractors." The letter recaps the results of the licensing restructuring process: the revision of the General Building B contractor definition; the merging of some specialty classes into others; and the recommendation for future modifications.

Sunset Review

A Sunset Review report was sent to the Joint Legislative Sunset Review Committee (JLSRC) on October 1, 1998. The report, which answered unresolved questions raised by the JLSRC, was presented at the September Committee Meeting. As noted in past issues of this newsletter, the CSLB responded to the first sunset review process in 1996, which resulted in Senate Bill 825. That legislation extended the Board's sunset date to January 1, 2001, and called for a CSLB response to specific, unresolved issues that were addressed in the October 1, 1998, report.

Round Table Discussion

A round table discussion was held at the September Committee meeting. The concepts of a bond safety net to provide a greater level of protection for consumer, and merit badges to recognize contractors who attain a higher level of training or education were discussed by an assembly of Board members, industry representatives, the Center for Public Interest Law (CPIL), surety bond and insurance company representatives, and license school representatives. The Board will continue to explore these topics.

Home Improvement Certification Exam Will Be Available on the Internet First—Expect Instant Gratification

For those home improvement contractors who need instant gratification, the mandated home improvement certification examination will be available on the Internet beginning January 1, 1999. A pencil-and-paper version will be ready sometime after the first of the year.

The CSLB's Internet web site, www.cslb.ca.gov, will contain the test booklet and examination. The test-taker can study the cyber test booklet, then take an interactive open-book examination, and get the test results immediately. There will be multiple versions of the examination, each one to contain approximately 20 questions about home improvement work.

Once contractors pass, they download the test and application, complete the application, check the Internet box, sign and date it, and return it to the CSLB. A new Home Improvement Certification (HIC) will be added to the license and a new pocket card will be sent out showing the HIC certification.

As soon as it is available, the test booklet and pen-and-paper version will go to all contractors who have not taken the exam on the Internet. It will not be necessary to request the booklet and examination. As with the Internet process, there are multiple versions of the exam, and contractors may study for and take the exam until they pass. It will take four to six weeks for the results of tests taken on paper.

Refresh My Memory, Please . . .

WHAT: Home Improvement Certification open-book examination mandated by law.

WHO: All licensed contractors, generals and subs, who engage in or plan to engage in home improvement work.

WHEN: The examination will be available beginning January 1, 1999. All home improvement contractors must take and pass the examination and become certified by June 30, 2000.

WHERE: On the Internet beginning January 1, 1999, by pencil and paper sometime after January 1, 1999.

WHY: Assembly Bill 1213 mandates this certification requirement.

Inquiring Contractors Want To Know—Your Most Commonly Asked Questions

The Contractors State License Board call center receives and answers more than 30,000 calls every month. Additionally, our regional, district and branch offices field hundreds of calls every day. Many inquiries are from consumers checking a contractor's license or just asking for directions to the movie theater.

Homeowners aren't the only CSLB clients who have inquiring minds. In no particular order, below are a list of the most commonly asked questions from contractors of CSLB:

Q: I'm a General Building B contractor. What kind of work can I do?

A: The law changed effective January 1, 1998 regarding the kind of contracts General Building "B" contractors can take. Currently, General Building "B" contractors can:

- take a prime contract or subcontract that involves framing or carpentry.
- take a prime contract or subcontract that involves at least two unrelated trades or crafts (other than framing or carpentry).
- take a contract for a single specialty trade provided the work of the contract is subcontracted to a properly licensed specialty contractor.
- take a contract for the work of any specialty license classification for which they hold a specialty license classification.

Need a translation? With some exceptions (like framing and carpentry), General Building "B" contractors can take specialty work so long as they are licensed to do that kind of specialty work or as long as they sub it out to the appropriate licensed subcontractor. You can read the new description in Business and Professions Code Section 7057.

Q: With what states do we have reciprocity? And can you say "reciprocity" three times fast?

A: Currently, CSLB has reciprocity agreements with three states: Nevada, Arizona and Utah, and reciprocity is considered on a case-by-case basis. The contractor must hold a classification comparable to one sought in California. If the applicant meets the qualifications, the trade examination only may be waived; however, contractors must still apply for a license and pass the business and law portion of the exam. Additionally, the applicant must certify a license in good standing for the five-year period immediately preceding application here in California.

Q: How do I add someone to my license?

A: There are different steps, different forms, and possibly additional examinations and new licenses depending if you are talking partnerships, corporation, qualifying individuals, or new business. The best thing to do is to call the CSLB and explain what you want to do.

Duplicate Business Names

Licensed contractors occasionally ask whether or not, according to Contractors State License Board law, they can use the same business name as another contractor. In most cases, the answer would seem to be “yes.” There is no CSLB law that prevents licensees from using the same business name.

The Secretary of State’s Office will not issue duplicate business names to corporations in good standing that register with them. When a corporation gets a contractor’s license or when it changes its business name, CSLB requires that it use the name registered with the Secretary of State. However, a DBA (Doing Business As) can be added to the business name.

Contractors must use the business name shown on their license, according to Business & Professions Code Section 7117. The name on the license can be either the license holder’s personal name or a fictitious business name as defined in B & P Code Section 17900. According to B & P Code Section 17910, a fictitious business name statement must be filed no later than 40 days from the time business commences.

Because there are limited restrictions on the use of business names, the Board encourages contractors to provide and clients to use the correct license number as the distinguishing element to verify a license.

As an example and point of clarification, RAS Builders, license #410634, as listed in the summer 1998 issue of the California Licensed Contractor, should not be confused with R.A.S. Builders, Inc., license #495119.

integrity and hard work and (2) to serve to the best of his abilities. With an impressive track record in both the public and private work sectors, Mr. Wong continues to strive for those goals and is able to juggle two roles as a Board member: protecting consumers and serving contractors.

Coordinating efforts between the CSLB and agencies such as the California Department of Real Estate and public outreach and education are Mr. Wong’s primary objectives while on the Board. He has seen first-hand fraud and unscrupulous business activity that is committed against minority groups.

“It is usually for lack of knowledge that minority homeowners get taken advantage of, so I would like to see greater efforts to better inform these community members,” he said.

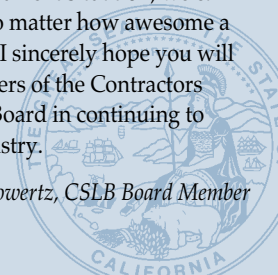

“However, I am delighted to know of the public relations and outreach programs the Board is involved in for all homeowners. I believe that education and prevention is the best way to protect consumers,” he concluded.

A Message from a Board Member...

You, as a contractor, and I, as a Board member, are in the business of building. You construct homes, bridges, airports. I establish policy to help make California a place where you can do your job. Keep in mind, building is not accomplished only with the hands. It starts with attitudes, ideas, beliefs, and standards. I can’t emphasize enough how important it is to start with a belief in yourself. Conviction in ourselves and our work is the most dynamic force in our lives—it is as real as the law of gravity.

Have you ever noticed that what we build yesterday determines how today is structured? Sometimes we discover in the middle of building—in projects and in life—the materials we used weren’t as great as we originally thought. If we don’t like the current situation, we can build anew, no matter how awesome a job it appears. I sincerely hope you will join the members of the Contractors State License Board in continuing to build our industry.

— Sharon Kowertz, CSLB Board Member

Inquiring Contractors Want To Know

Q: What is the most a contractor can ask as down payment on a home improvement contract?

A: On home improvement contracts for swimming pools, by law you can ask for no more than two percent of the total contract price or $200 down, whichever is less. On all other home improvement contracts, it is 10 percent of the total contract price or $1,000 down, whichever is less. For example, on a home improvement contract of $5,000, you can ask for no more than $500 as a down payment.

Q: Can I use a different name on my license other my personal name?

A: Yes. You can use a DBA (doing business as) name in addition to or in place of your personal name. You must register your DBA within 90 days of making a change. You cannot use more than one fictitious name. Also, contractors must use the business name shown on their license. The name on the license can be either the license holder's personal name or a fictitious business name as defined in Business and Professions Code Section 17900. You are encouraged to provide the business name used on your license and your license number to customers. That way, your customers can easily verify the business name as listed with CSLB.

Q: How do I file a complaint?

A: You need to file a written complaint to get the ball rolling. Get a complaint form by calling (800) 321-CSLB or by logging onto www.cslb.ca.gov or by contacting your local CSLB office. Complete the form (one page back-to-back), attach copies of contracts, canceled checks or other information pertinent to your complaint and return it to the district office nearest you.

Q: Are there any complaints against (fill in name here) contractor?

A: The Board can tell you if there have been any CSLB legal action taken against a contractor. We do not release information about pending complaint investigations or complaints that have been resolved before CSLB has taken legal action against the license.

Q: Why does the complaint process take so long?

A: The CSLB receives and closes about 30,000 complaints each year. CSLB district offices process most complaints this way: an employee representative of the Board contacts both the complainant and the contractor for information and attempts to mediate the complaint. If mediation is unsuccessful, the complaint is assigned to a deputy registrar for investigation to determine if there has been any violation of the Contractors License Law. The deputy reviews documents, interviews the complainant, contractor and other parties. An industry expert may be called in to render an opinion. A thorough investigation can take time.

The Board is working on ways to re-engineer some of our operations, including complaint investigation to speed things along. Right now, the median closure time for a case is 40-50 days.

Q: What are you doing about unlicensed contractors?

A: The Board's major weapon to fight unlicensed contractors are the Underground Economy Enforcement Units (UEEU). These units set up stings of unlicensed contractors and conduct sweeps of construction sites. More than one sting every week is conducted. In fact, 88 stings and 135 sweeps were held last year. Additionally, in 1997-98 more than 1,600 citations were issued to unlicensed contractors and 1,014 were referred to local prosecutors for criminal prosecution. If you have evidence of unlicensed contracting (advertisements, flyers, business cards, etc.), contact one of the UEEUs at (916) 255-2924 or (714) 994-7435.

Q: How can I find a good homeowner?

A: CSLB cannot refer good or bad homeowners, just as we cannot refer individual contractors to homeowners. We can offer these "tips" when looking for a good client: (1) Watch out for couples threatening divorce; (2) Walk the other way if your prospect is served an arrest warrant while you are bidding the job; (3) Look out for the homeowner who says, "I don't care what you do. Just make it look beautiful."

several topics from which to choose. The events are based on input from you — the topics you want, in locations near you, at a time that is most convenient for you. And they are free. Please see the registration form on page 8.

The Board's call center in headquarters and field offices throughout the state receive thousands of questions from you. Read up on your most commonly-asked questions and answers from the CSLB, beginning on page 3.

An introduction to Pablo Wong, the Contractors State License Board's newest member and strong advocate for contractor and consumer education, begins on page 1. There also is an important update on the Home Improvement Certification program. Any contractor who does home improvement work in California must take and pass an open-book examination by June 30, 2000. This certification will be in addition to your regular contractors license.
